

The FCC should not implement any proposal that would lessen Indiana's Telephone Privacy law protection. Indiana's Telephone Privacy laws has made it possible for me to have dinner without the hassle of constant solicitation calls. Prior to this law, I received an average of 5 to 6 calls per month. If I wanted the callers business, I would contact them on my own initiative. I've made a pledge to never contribute or work with any company or charity that invades my privacy by making a phone call. I prefer to respond to mail. Indiana's current law has limited the calls to my home to a maximum of one per month.....pure Heaven for me and my family!
